

You work in the IT department of an international company. You have recently been invited to attend a technology networking event hosted by a partner company.

Write a formal email (around 120 words) to the event organizer in which you:

- Express your congratulations on the organization of the event.
- Show appreciation for the opportunity to attend.

Mention briefly why you are interested in participating in their future projects

Subject: Congratulations on the event and interest in future collaboration

Dear Sir or Madam,

I am writing to sincerely congratulate you and your entire team on the success of last week's event. The organization and the quality made it a truly memorable experience for all attendees.

I would also like to express my sincere appreciation for the invitation to attend. It was a pleasure to represent my company and to have the opportunity to exchange ideas with other industry professionals in such an enriching environment.

Looking ahead, I am very interested in being involved in your upcoming projects. After witnessing your innovative approach, I am confident that the technical synergy between our two companies combined could lead to highly successful outcomes.

I look forward to staying in touch.

Sincerely,

Juan Manuel
